

Job Openings (Title: Assistant Professor)

The Faculty of Economics at the University of Tokyo is inviting applications for tenure-track assistant professor positions starting in July 2012. We are particularly interested in candidates with research interests in the areas of empirical microeconomics (development, health, international, IO, and labor) and international trade.

We invite applications from candidates with outstanding research potential and strong teaching skills. The successful candidates will teach at the undergraduate, masters, and PhD levels. We will only consider candidates who provide convincing evidence that they will complete their doctorate by August 2012.

Application Instructions:

Applicants should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae and a writing sample of current research to recruit2012@e.u-tokyo.ac.jp. Three letters of recommendation should be sent directly to recruit2012@e.u-tokyo.ac.jp. The application deadline is November 30, 2011.
